Official Communiqué Ignores Western Area Discussion; Cracow, Lodz, Posen In Danger; Many Prisoners Taken

Airplane Offensive Against Cuxhaven Beaten Off; 12 Of London's Craft Shot Down During Major Effort

BULLETIN

WARSAW, Sept. 5—The Polish government may soon be compelled to evacuate Warsaw, already subjected to numerous air raids and directly in the path of the Reich's armies, it was reported today.

As smoke billowed from parts of the capital set afire by exploding German bombs, Poland conceded major progress by the German armies across the Polish Corridor. It was thought likely the government would choose a less vulnerable spot somewhere east of Warsaw in event it has to move.

BERLIN, Sept. 5—The combined pincer and encirclement tactics of the German army are slicing up Poland at the average rate of more than 15 miles a day, it was estimated on the basis of a communiqué from the high command today.

The jaws of the German war machine are closing fastest on Cracow, Lodz and Posen.

The communiqué showed that the right arm of the Cracow pincer had moved forward 30 kilometers (18½ miles) to Wadowice since yesterday, while the left arm advanced another 20 kilometers (12½ miles) to Jaworzno.

Encirclement Possible

German troops succeeded in crossing the Warthe River near Sieradz, which means that unless the Poles retreat bodily across the river, Polish forces remaining on the Sieradz side must retire or risk encirclement.

The Germans are now advancing south in the Polish Corridor from the town of Culm towards Thorn, 25 miles distant, which with Gradenz in 1914 formed an impregnable fortified gateway to Posen.

A capture of Thorn would open a path south for a rapid meeting with the army advancing on Lodz, thus trapping the Polish forces operating in West Poland while making possible a combined spearhead drive against Warsaw from Lodz.

The communiqué stated: "The German eastern army broke enemy resistance on all fronts on September 4, advancing irresistibly while the enemy is retreating, partially in disorder."

British Planes May Raid Nazis' Kiel Zone Again

LONDON, Sept. 5—(delayed by censor)—New British aerial attacks on the Kiel Canal, headquarters of the German high seas fleet, were anticipated today as Londoners joyfully read newspaper accounts of the first assault yesterday, officially described as "successful."

Efforts to obtain full details of the first major action by the Royal Air Force in the new European War were without success. The ministry of information appointed by the government to coordinate and release official military material for publication, stood by this announcement, dated yesterday.

"A successful attack was carried out this afternoon by units of the Royal Air Force on vessels of the German fleet at Wilhelmshaven and Brunsbüttel at the entrance of the Kiel Canal."

"Several direct hits with heavy bombs were registered on a German ship (Continued on Page Two)

On European Front

France and Britain today kept their land war operations hidden in the closest secrecy, while Germany reported swift advances on all Polish fronts. War developments—

PARIS—French war communiqué No. 3 said: "movement is proceeding normally on land, sea, and in the air." Paris had a three-hour air raid alarm before dawn, but no bombers appeared.

LONDON—New British air attacks were expected on German bases off the Kiel Canal, as Britain reported two German warships were damaged in yesterday's raid.

BERLIN—Germany said all 12 British planes in the Wilhelmshaven-Cuxhaven raids were shot down and their bombs fell into the water. Deep advances through Silesia and the Polish Corridor were announced, but it was insisted that no fighting had occurred yet on the west wall.

WARSAW—Poland claimed capture of Karhain and Kowahien in an offensive against East Prussia, but conceded German progress as the Poles made strategic retreats on other fronts.

GREENOCK, Scotland—First survivors from the sunken Athenia landed with reports that a submarine first torpedoed her, then fired what appeared to be a gas shell. Survivors estimated at least 99 of the 1,400 passengers lost their lives.

Picnic? No! Evacuation

THIS is not a scene of children going to a picnic. These kiddies are shown in a drill for evacuation of London. Great Britain is rushing as many of its citizens as possible out of its big cities, fearful of air raids. London, alone, is evacuating nearly 3,000,000 persons.

Paris Claims Gains Normal

PARIS, Sept. 5—A brief communiqué issued by the French war ministry today stated that France's military services are proceeding "normally," indicating new successes by the seasoned French army on the western front.

Entirely lacking in details and containing no hint of the actual nature or extent of hostilities, the communiqué said: "Movement is proceeding normally on land, sea and in the air."

(Editor's note: Before last night's drastic censorship was clamped down in Paris, Kenneth T. Downs succeeded in getting through to New York by wireless a military statement to the effect that French troops, "attacking with traditional bravery and élan," had broken through the German defenses at a depth of 3 kilometers (1.86 miles.)

While the three terse communiqués issued thus far have revealed little, their tone obviously implied French successes. While guns thundered along the Maginot Line and the German west wall, there was a general air of optimism and confidence among people in streets and cafes who gathered to talk over and interpret the brief announcements made.

Publication, Broadcast Denied

At the present time, the government is not permitting publication or broadcast of any news from the Rhine front except that contained in the communiqués. French news broadcasts include government announcements of foreign developments, with only sketchy military details.

The Paris Midi today carried this boxed item above its masthead: "Do you want news? Have patience. Patience is the courage of civilians."

The press proudly hailed the sang-froid of the population during the initial alarm.

"Paris has demonstrated its (Continued on Page Two)

For six hours today, the censors of Great Britain, France and Germany worked with vengeance, establishing a complete "blackout" of war news that lasted from 1 until almost 6 A. M. (Circleville time).

When the veil was finally lifted, a brief communiqué from Paris flashed through, stating the French operations on land, sea and in the air were "proceeding normally" and Berlin released its own version of the British air raid attack on the Kiel naval bases yesterday.

Whereas the Royal Air Force claimed successful hits on two German battleships, the Reich command declared all twelve British raiders had been "shot down."

But so far as real war news was concerned, everyone except those doing the actual fighting and the officials directing it remained in complete ignorance.

Heavy fighting was still in progress on the Franco-German front, and it was a safe assumption that the British Air Force probably had launched some new attacks such as the allegedly successful one carried out on the German high seas fleet station at the entrance to the Kiel Canal yesterday.

But the blanket of censorship was, during the early hours of the morning, complete and impenetrable.

This situation—the second of its kind since the new war in Europe followed on the heels of Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's military initiative in Poland—threw an interesting light on the difficulties that face America in keeping abreast of the hostilities that have now become such an incalculable factor in the onward march of civilization.

WHEAT CLIMBS, STOCKS ROCKET TO HIGH MARKS

First Business Day Since War Declaration Brings Enormous Trade

COPPER UP 10 POINTS

Absence of "Sell" Orders Holds Up U. S., Bethlehem Steel Issues

Circleville grain prices jumped Tuesday, wheat from 71 cents to 77 cents; yellow corn from 47 to 52; white corn to 61 from 56 cents, and soybeans from 66 cents to 71.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—American trading marts skyrocketed today, the first business day since the Anglo-French declaration of war on Germany.

On the New York Stock Exchange, the ticker was running three minutes behind as "war babies" soared 1 to 10 points—the latter spectacular gain made by Anaconda Copper—and the curb market recorded gains of better than 7 points.

All Chicago wheat was up the limit of five cents.

Unique feature of the New York Stock Exchange was the lateness in transactions in U. S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel. Forty-five minutes after the initial gong, these stocks still had not opened due to absence of "sell" orders.

September and December wheat also were up the limit at Kansas City.

At a special meeting of the Board of Trade directors in Chicago this morning the price range in September contracts was lowered. September wheat which was allowed to go up or down eight cents during the delivery month must now hold to a range of five cents, the same as deferred futures. September corn is now limited to four cents, the same as other futures. The nearby oats contract must hold to a range of three cents.

VERA CRUZ MAY PROVIDE HAVEN FOR THE BREMEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—The German liner Bremen, $20,000,000 prize of the Nazi merchant marine, was believed in shipping circles today to be making its way on a round-about course into the neutral port of Vera Cruz, Mexico.

Freighter Is Sunk In Baltic Sea

LONDON, Sept. 5—A report was received by the British Ministry of Information today that the British freighter Bosnia has been sunk, presumably in Baltic waters.

Available information stated that all members of the crew had been rescued except a fireman who was dead. The Bosnia was a 2,400 ton freighter operating out of Liverpool.

LONDON—Information reached London tonight that the German steamers Olinda and Carl Fritzen have been sunk, but that their crews are safe.

Yesterday the freighter Olinda was reported to have been run aground along the coast of Brazil by a British warship.

F. D. R. DECREES U. S. NEUTRALITY

Embargo To Be Announced On Arms And Other War Implements

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—President Roosevelt today formally proclaimed to the world the neutrality of the United States in Europe's great war.

The proclamation was issued under international law and was expected to be followed shortly by another pronouncement which would enforce an embargo on shipments of U. S. arms, ammunition and implements of war to belligerent powers.

SCHOOL PUPILS REMAIN AT HOME IN MUHLENBERG

Many Muhlenberg Township parents are keeping their children home from school until they know the outcome of the court case involving proposed transfer of the district to Monroe Township School.

This was clearly indicated Tuesday by enrollment figures at Darbyville Elementary School and Jackson Township School where the high school pupils were sent by the Township Board of Education. The enrollment in the elementary school Tuesday was reported at 62. This includes the first eight grades. It was reported (Continued on Page Two)

UNCLE SAM READY TO SELL CORN AND WHEAT TO EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—The United States government stands ready to sell its $1,000,000,000 surplus cotton, corn and wheat holdings to European powers, agriculture department officials reported today.

War demand for corn and wheat is expected to evidence itself very quickly, a department spokesman said. Heavy cotton buying, however, is not anticipated for at least 12 months.

As quickly as American neutrality machinery is perfected, agriculture officials will consider the orderly liquidation of surplus commodity holdings into the war market.

Members Of Ship's Crew Positive That Torpedo Caused Disaster

PROPELLORS FATAL TO 50

Rescue Liner Wrecks Boat Holding Many; Americans Reported Saved

GREENOCK, Scotland, Sept. 5—The British passenger liner Athenia, carrying 1,400 Canadian and American war refugees to Montreal, was "struck amidships" by a torpedo from a submarine which later fired what appeared to be a gas shell, members of the crew declared on their arrival in Greenock today.

Ninety lives at least were lost, the survivors estimated. Fifty were believed to have been killed when the propellers of the rescue ship Knute Nelson were inexplicably set in motion after a loaded lifeboat had been lashed alongside.

Brought to Greenock by two British destroyers which rushed to the spot where the Athenia sank yesterday 200 miles west of the Hebrides, surviving passengers and members of the crew were lodged in hotels and hospitals.

Seaman Tells Story

Here is the first full story of the first maritime disaster of the new European War, as told by Able Seaman H. Dillon of Glasgow, a member of the Athenia's crew:

"The submarine appeared about a quarter of a mile distant and fired a torpedo which hit the Athenia amidships.

"The submarine then broke surface near the Athenia and fired what was thought to be a gas shell.

"It was immediately seen that the Athenia had been hit in a vital spot and orders were given to abandon ship.

"The survivors took to the lifeboats and rowed around until the Norwegian liner Knute Nelson arrived on the scene approximately five hours later.

Many Lives Lost

"One lifeboat was made fast to the freighter but for some unknown reason the ship's propellers were set in motion with the result the lifeboat was smashed to pieces and it is feared that only seven or eight out of the fifty-six aboard the lifeboat were saved.

"Some members of the crew were in the water for three hours before being picked up. This was made possible by arrival of the Swedish luxury yacht Southern Cross which came to the scene and played searchlights on the water.

"The ship was hit in the vicinity of the engine-room. It is feared most of the casualties occurred there."

POLES IN AMERICA OPEN DRIVE FOR 10 MILLIONS

CHICAGO, Sept. 5—A goal of $10,000,000 was set today by the Council of Polish Organization in America as its directors met in Chicago to lay plans for a campaign to raise funds for the Polish Red Cross.

"America's 5,000,000 Poles want to help Poland," said Joseph Przydatek, secretary of the council. "and we can best serve them by relieving their suffering."

"Miss Ohio"

A 19-year-old Cleveland theatre usher, Miss Jeanne Soboda, has been selected as "Miss Ohio." She will represent the state in the Atlantic City, N. J., pageant of beauty with a chance to be selected "Miss America 1939."

CAVALRY RAIDS SILESIA TOWNS

Polish Claim Victories; Warsaw In Flames After Airplane Bombing

WARSAW, (military dispatch via Paris), Sept. 5—Suddenly opening an offensive on the extreme eastern frontier of Germany, hard-riding Polish cavalrymen today were claimed to have captured two East Prussian towns and penetrated more than seven miles beyond the border.

The thrust was made from the Suwalki section, where Poland projects between East Prussia and Lithuania.

Karhain and Kowahien both fell to the Poles, it was said, and one German officer and 30 soldiers were taken prisoner.

The remainder of the German forces in that sector, it was asserted, were falling back in disorder.

On other fronts, German advances were attributed to strategic retreats to shorten the Polish battle lines.

GERMANS RETAIN BRITISH ENVOY, AWAIT OWN AIDE

LONDON, Sept. 5—The German government has refused to allow British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson to quit Germany until German Charge d'Affaires Theodore Kordt has left England, it was announced today.

This action has resulted in delaying Kordt's departure until the Netherlands government has consented to act as go-between.

When this permission has been received, Britain will allow Kordt to sail for Rotterdam "on condition that if the British embassy staff is not then allowed to cross into Holland, the German embassy staff will be returned to England." It is expected the exchange will be effected by the Netherlands government.

German troops succeeded in crossing the Warthe River near Sieradz, which means that unless the Poles retreat bodily across the river, Polish forces remaining on the Sieradz side must retire or risk encirclement.

The few messages allowed to trick through from the other side early this morning told of air raid warnings in Paris, new German success in Poland and a brief amplification of yesterday's British raid on Wilhelmshaven.

From Paris came a couple of pro-British bulletins alleging German setbacks in East Prussia, but up to 6 A. M. there was not a new word concerning the hostilities of real importance from the allied point of view—these on the western front.

Why this strange silence? A thousand reasons could be given, but one of the best probably lies in the general mentality and make-up of the censor as such.

It will be recalled that immediately after censorship was established, there was a complete black-out like that of today. Yet the censor in Paris passed to International News Service a dispatch telling that the French air ministry had been moved out of its regular offices and transferred to the Hotel George V. on the Champs Elysees.

To even the most uninitiated, this would appear to be a military secret of utmost importance, a precious morsel of information for the German air force of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

The Germans, it was stated, also advanced in the Prasnysz and Cieschnow sectors south of East Prussia.

Polish forces attacked German mechanized units on the Silesian front, and Polish fliers bombed German divisions northeast of Szeszochowa. Seventeen German planes, according to the Poles, were shot down, and eight Polish craft were lost.

Hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets was reported in Silesia, where the battle, on one of three major fronts, is described as extremely bitter.

Crowds of angry and grief-stricken residents of Warsaw thronged the streets following the two air raids, which started several fires.

The German attacks destroyed a factory, four apartment houses, and a street car.

A railroad station was badly damaged and set on fire. Many wounded were cared for in the streets.

Polish airplanes and anti-aircraft fire engaged the Germans, and three German planes were shot down within Warsaw. Casualties were believed to be high, but it was impossible to estimate them at once.

VISITOR TO NEW YORK RETURNED TO FACE COURT

George H. Groom, 20, of South Scioto Street, pleaded guilty in Mayor W. B. Cady's court Tuesday to a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses and was bound to the county jail when he failed to provide bond.

Groom is charged with taking the Crosley car of Councilman Ben H. Gordon for a trip to the New York World's Fair after obtaining the car for a "tryout" as a prospective purchaser.

Groom and three companions who made the trip to New York were returned Monday night by Earl Weaver, deputy sheriff, W. F. McCrady, police chief, and Karl Herrmann, safety director. Others with Groom were Fred Brown, 19, of York Street, and Betty Smith, 19, and Imogene Grubb, 17, both of Li hopolis.

Deputy Sheriff Weaver said the young folk left Circleville without money and pawned their clothing and personal effects to keep traveling. Weaver said Groom pawned his shaving equipment at Cadiz when they ran out of gas and obtained enough gasoline to get to Steubenville. There he pawned a suit of clothes for gasoline and a ticket over a bridge. Others in the group pawned various articles to keep the little car in gasoline as they went eastward.

The deputy said they apparently had no real meals on their trip. They ate apples and sandwiches when they had sufficient funds to buy food. The car ran out of gasoline on the Skyline bridge in New York and had to be pushed across, they told the deputy.

Although they headed for the World's Fair they never reached their destination, the officers said. They visited Coney Island and were picked up by Brooklyn police before reaching the fair.

The three companions of Groom were returned to their homes. Mayor W. B. Cady said costs in the case against Groom total $114.34. The costs of returning Groom total $106.24. The costs in the mayor's court are $8.10.

man battleship in the Schilling Roads off Wilhelmshaven which resulted in severe damage.

"At Brunsbuttel, an attack was carried out on a battleship lying alongside the mole, causing heavy damage. During the operation, which was carried out in very unfavorable weather conditions, our aircraft encountered an air attack and anti-aircraft fire resulting in some casualties.

Meanwhile, the ministry of information hailed as a great success another type of attack by the R.A.F.—a flight by squadrons of British planes over Germany territory to drop propaganda leaflets.

Pilots returning to their bases after the pamphlet raid said they saw no signs of military activity on German soil. The flight was unimpeded, and not one enemy aircraft attempted to engage the British fliers in combat.

Success of the extensive propaganda raids over Germany was held to throw an important light on the lack of German air raid precaution efficiency. A large number of British bombers must have taken part in the operation, for a total of thirteen tons of paper was dropped on German territory.

pincers movement from Pomerania and East Prussia across the Corridor seemed to observers to support Berlin's announcement that Polish forces in the northern part of the Corridor had been cut off.
The Germans, it was stated, also advanced in the Prasnyszy and Cieschnow sectors south of East Prussia.
Polish forces attacked German mechanized units on the Silesian front, and Polish fliers bombed German divisions northeast of Szeszotowa. Seventeen German planes, according to the Poles, were shot down, and eight Polish craft were lost.

Hand-to-hand fighting with bayonets was reported in Silesia, where the battle, on one of three major fronts, is described as extremely bitter.

Crowds of angry and grief-stricken residents of Warsaw thronged the streets following the two air raids, which started several fires.

The German attacks destroyed a factory, four apartment houses, and a street car.

A railroad station was badly damaged and set on fire. Many wounded were cared for in the streets.

Polish airplanes and anti-aircraft fire engaged the Germans, and three German planes were shot down within Warsaw.

Casualties were believed to be high, but it was impossible to estimate them at once.

coolness—and it is only the beginning," said the Paris-Midi.
In the Hotel Continental when the sirens started guests calmly dressed and followed the pink "abri" ("shelter") signs and arrows down the corridors thence to the basement, in a quiet and leisurely fashion as though they had been doing that all their lives.

Some remained under cover long enough to be sure of the routine, then returned to their rooms and slept. Others stayed the full three hours, chatting and smoking, or catching naps in chairs.

Almost without exception, Parisians carried gas masks in the streets today.

Trouble in Naziland?
Signs of trouble in the German Nazi hierarchy were seen today as Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, prominent writer for L'Oeuvre, who expressed the hope that an interior crack-up in the Reich would abbreviate the war.

George H. Groom, 20, of South Scioto Street, pleaded guilty in Mayor W. B. Cady's court Tuesday to a charge of obtaining property under false pretenses and was bound to the grand jury under $1,000 bond. He was committed to the county jail when he failed to provide bond.

Groom is charged with taking the Crosley car of Councilman Ben H. Gordon for a trip to the New York World's Fair after obtaining the car for a "tryout" as a prospective purchaser.

Groom and three companions who made the trip to New York were returned Monday night by Earl Weaver, deputy sheriff, W. F. McCrady, police chief, and Karl Herrmann, safety director. Others with Groom were Fred Brown, 19, of York Street, and Betty Smith, 19, and Imogene Grubb, 17, both of Li hopolis.

Deputy Sheriff Weaver said the young folk left Circleville without money and pawned their clothing and personal effects to keep traveling. Weaver said Groom pawned his shaying equipment at Cadiz when they ran out of gas and obtained enough gasoline to get to Steubenville. There he pawned a suit of clothes for gasoline and a ticket over a bridge. Others in the group pawned various articles to keep the little car in gasoline as they went eastward.

The deputy said they apparently had no real meals on their trip. They ate apples and sandwiches when they had sufficient funds to buy food. The car ran out of gasoline on the Skyline bridge in New York and had to be pushed across, they told the deputy.

Although they headed for the World's Fair they never reached their destination, the officers said. They visited Coney Island and were picked up by Brooklyn police before reaching the fair.

The three companions of Groom were returned to their homes.

Mayor W. B. Cady said costs in the case against Groom total $114.34. The costs of returning Groom total $106.24. The costs in the mayor's court are $8.10.

"At Brunsbuttel, an attack was carried out on a battleship lying alongside the mole, causing heavy damage. During the operation, which was carried out in very unfavorable weather conditions, our aircraft encountered an air attack and anti-aircraft fire resulting in some casualties.
Meanwhile, the ministry of information hailed as a great success another type of attack by the R.A.F.—a flight by squadrons of British planes over Germany territory to drop propaganda leaflets.
Pilots returning to their bases after the pamphlet raid said they saw no signs of military activity on German soil. The flight was unimpeded, and not one enemy aircraft attempted to engage the British fliers in combat.
Successes of the extensive propaganda raids over Germany was held to throw an important light on the lack of German air raid precaution efficiency. A large number of British bombers must have taken part in the operation, for a total of thirteen tons of paper was dropped on German territory.

LONDON, Sept. 5—William F. Amrine, the former superintendent, today took charge of the London prison farm, relieving Superintendent Thomas C. Jenkins.

Jenkins, Amrine said, has been granted a 90-day leave of absence by the state welfare department. The superintendent over a week ago requested a leave of Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood. He has long been suffering from a heart ailment.

During August, 14 convicts escaped from the honor farm and the superintendent has been under fire. He has repeatedly insisted that he had no intention of resigning, nevertheless, there have been recurring reports that before the leave of absence expires the welfare department would permanently replace Jenkins.

U. S. Faces Huge Evacuation Task

'Bridge' Of Convoy Ships May Be Tried To Bring Nationals Home; Permits To Be Refused For European Visitors

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—As Europe's new great war swiftly gathered deadly momentum, the American government today prepared a series of extraordinary steps to insulate the nation against its disastrous impact and to remove thousands of U. S. nationals from the warring countries.

In a virtually unprecedented move, the state department issued a "quarantine" order against Europe, barring Americans from travel to the entire continent except in cases of "imperative necessity."

Of immediate deepest concern to President Roosevelt and his cabinet was the gigantic job of speedily effecting safe means of removal of approximately 70,000 Americans who were caught in England, France, Germany and Poland by the sudden outbreak of war.

Anxiety for these Americans—many permanent residents, other thousands tourists—was heightened by the sinking of the British liner Athenia, crowded to capacity with refugee Americans and Canadians.

May "Build Bridge"
To insure their safe removal in what may prove one of the greatest mass evacuations in history, Washington is expected to press units of the U. S. fleet into service in reestablishment of the convoy system with which the United States "built a bridge" across the Atlantic and transported more than 3,000,000 soldiers of the A. E. F. to France during the World War.

The decision on use of naval convoys will be reached today, Acting Secretary of Navy Charles Edison indicated.

At the same time, officials intimated, President Roosevelt may issue a warning to all Americans to quit Europe within ninety days. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Edison frankly admitted that the use of the convoy system presents many obstacles.

The Atlantic fleet, he said, must

BRANCHES RIPPED OFF Downpour Doubles Total Of Precipitation Recorded In August

High winds that lashed Circleville and Pickaway County Monday afternoon causing considerable damage to utility property, corn and trees brought relief from the heat and drought.

The Citizens Telephone Company reported about 25 poles blown down on the Walnut Creek Pike. Heaviest damage was on the Laurelville and Ashville exchanges, each reporting about 12 poles down.

The Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company reported considerable minor damage from tree limbs falling on wires. Fuses were blown and there were some minor interruptions of service.

Corn was blown down in many sections of the county. Farm owners said the winds did not damage the crop as it has developed, but the down stalks make cutting more difficult. Rains accompanying the storm are too late to be of any benefit to extremely late corn damaged by the drought.

Service Department Busy
Employees of the City Service Department were busy for two hours Monday evening clearing the streets of tree limbs broken by the high winds.

No serious damage to property was reported in Circleville. There were numerous reports of minor damage to roofs.

Rainfall in Circleville amounted to .83 of an inch. The rain is the first recorded in Circleville since Aug. 14. During the entire month of August the rainfall in Circleville amounted to only .43 of an inch.

Rain during the morning prevented a parade in the village. Crowds scattered for shelter during the severe rain storm in the afternoon but returned for the evening program.

The celebration included a fish fry, concessions, rides and dancing. Music was furnished by the Ashville High School Band. The celebration was closed with fireworks.

NEWSREEL WAR

The morning war broke probably was the first time in 163 years of American history that the

Mr. Orr said, would continue for two or three weeks.

Unfavorable weather conditions a part of the day failed to prevent the Labor Day celebration in Ashville, sponsored by Henry Page Folsom Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, from being a success.

Rain during the morning prevented a parade in the village. Crowds scamped for shelter during the severe rain storm in the afternoon but returned for the evening program.

The celebration included a fish fry, concessions, rides and dancing. Music was furnished by the Ashville High School Band. The celebration was closed with fireworks.

The outfit of one concessionaire was destroyed by the high winds. Others were kept busy preventing the wind from blowing down their tents and stands.

A large crowd enjoyed dancing Monday evening.

Secretary of State posed for the newsreels before breakfast.

Arriving at his office early in the morning, Hill first conferred by telephone with Ambassador Bullitt, Kennedy, and Biddle in Paris, London, and Poland. Shortly thereafter he admitted the news-reelmen to his office, where he was "shot."

Cameramen then dragged their floodlights, cables and complicated equipment about the State Department to various offices, shooting almost everyone in sight, including newsmen in their phone booths.

Note—This war is going to be pictured as no previous conflagration ever has been. Nothing will be left to the imagination, which illustrates the difficulty this country is bound to experience in remaining neutral.

POLISH AMBASSADOR

Following the Munich crisis, when Czechs felt they had been sold down the river, members of their Legation were angered at Polish Ambassador Potocki because of a statement he made on his return to Washington after Poland had helped carve up Czechoslovakia.

Today the Czechs are wondering if he would like to eat his bland words of October 4, 1938, when he said:

"As for Central Europe, the principle of self-determination has been definitely accepted and will be applied in the future as need may arise. It has exercised a quieting influence on a situation that was most tense. Peace has been welcomed by all, and the whole atmosphere has been cleared to produce a feeling of comfort and great relief."

THEFT CONFESSED

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5.—Wilbur Huffman, 24, Columbus, today confessed the midnight robbery of the U-Drive-It Co., Police Captain Thomas Scully said. Huffman was captured by a police riot squad in the lobby of the Ohio Theatre after he had allegedly obtained $47 from Don L. Hanas, night cashier for the car rental agency.

HITLER'S HEIRS

VERY touching was the statement of Fuehrer Hitler in which he indicated
the line of royal succession in Germany, in case anything happened to him in his patriotic job of shooting up Poland and an-nexing the rest of Europe.

If God in his wisdom sees fit to remove Hitler, the dictatorship then goes to Field Marshal Goering. If Goering passes on to Valahalla before Great Germany has achieved its manifest destiny, Deputy Fuehrer Rudolph Hess, political expert who runs the Nazi Party, will take up the torch and carry on. And there may be another and another until, as Hitler has prophesized, his Nazi Empire will last for 1,000 years, as Rome did.

But the onlooking world, or at least the part of it from which this present comment
comes, is not greatly concerned with the Nazi Crown Prince and his successors. If that whole outfit of super-militarists now
kicking Europe around were swept away—
as it will be in God's own good time—we could bear it. And from what we lesser mortals can guess from the general situation, that time may come much sooner than
the Nazi Caesars imagine.

Victor Hugo, telling about the elimination of Napoleon, the original European dictator, said simply that "God wearied of him." That fate may be expected for Hitler and all his gangster-statesmen. And the time may not be long.

FIRE TOWER SQUIRRELS

CONFIRMED "joiners", looking around
for a new movement or organization to sign up with should not overlook the Honorable Order of Squirrels. It is sponsored by the U. S. Forest Service and has a useful purpose, which is enlistment of citizens
in protection of forests from fires.

All the interested person has to do is
to visit a national forest and climb the winding stairway to the top of one of the fire towers, 80 to 100 feet high. Once at the top, the climber is allowed to get his breath again and then asked to pledge
himself to do all in his power to prevent forest fires. The tower man then presents
him with a membership card. There are no dues.

It is said that the ancient and honorable order of squirrels is growing fast.
People like to climb the fire towers. The view from the top is usually well worth the effort. There is also the personal exhlira-
tion and sense of achievement felt by people accustomed to elevators who find how many steps they can climb if they try.

HITLER LETS HIS ADVISERS ARGUE

WASHINGTON—No matter what you may think of Hitler, it is clear from reports percolating back from Berlin that he is the man who is making the decisions
in Germany.

Field Marshal Goering, the Aviation Minister, is second in command, but even
he takes no steps without Hitler's definite O. K.

Hitler's favorite method of outlining a
policy is to call in several of his advisers
and provoke an argument among them.
Hitler himself listens. Finally, when the discussion is hot and he has heard both sides, he steps in and makes the decision.

Last winter, for instance, Goering became convinced that the persecution of the Jews was costing Germany far more than it was worth. He argued that it was making enemies all over the world, and increasing the economic boycott.

Therefore he proposed that Germany
should ease up on the anti-Jewish drive,
permit the older Jews to remain in the country, and only insist on the exodus
of the wage-earners, but give them time to arrange their affairs. The wage-earners,
he said, would be sure to take their families with them.

Goering informed Hitler that he wanted to discuss this with him and got an invitation to come to Berchtesgaden. When he arrived, he found Foreign Minister Ribbentrop and Heinrich Himmler, head of the secret police, also present. Both are leaders of the anti-Jewish movement and argued vigorously against the Goering plan.

Goering countered, and the argument
continued at length, Hitler listening. Finally Hitler interrupted, told Goering he was convinced that his plan of easing the anti-Jewish drive was good and should be given six months or so to see how it worked.

PROPHET ICKES

Omniscient Secretary Ickes was the only man in Washington who predicted
war on September 1 and hit it right on the nose.

Ickes pointed out that Hitler always
considered September his lucky month,
and that he would probably wait until the first day of September to attack Poland.
Hitler struck just after the hands of the clock had moved into the very early hours
of September first.

than men climb the towers. The women
never look down while they are climbing;
the men usually do. That may be why
more of the latter give up before they have gone more than half way.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE ... Hour by Hour

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another day of World War. When living through the first one that was to end all
war and make the world safe
for democracy I did not suspect that I would live through a second one. But here I am and across the Atlantic Europe
is in flames. All major powers except the United States either
are engaged in warfare or pledged to aid a power that is engaged.
So far the only safe and sane
spot in the world is this land of ours. May our land remain as it is.

This conflagration of hatred
that now is raging will be almost as much a war of words as a war of guns. Remember that constantly. England and France
wish us allies and will strive toward that end. Germany
wishes us to remain neutral and
will do all possible to keep us so.
That German aim is the only one
with which I am in full accord.
I regard Hitler as a distinct
menace, but a menace to Europe,
not the United States. I hope
he is crushed and believe that the vast majority of American citizens have a similar hope.

We have in Circleville two organizations of men who saw service in the last war. They are the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Regardless of what we think now, those groups will have much to do with moulding of public opinion. Since shortly after signing of the Armistice
the former soldiers have been largely forgotten by the general public. But conditions being such as they are now those
former soldiers will command
more and more attention and more and more respect. When the talk is of war those men
know much of the subject.
Members of the Legion and the VFW went through the last World War and know that we got nothing out of it. They know that wars are useless and insane.
They should help us keep our feet on the ground by telling us
of the horrors of war, by constantly reminding us that we have nothing to gain by participation.

Strange it is how little news
there is except that of war.
The same was true in 1914-1918.
Folk will talk of nothing else,
and right here everyone believes
that England and France will emerge victorious, but not until
millions of lives have been lost
and billions of dollars blasted
out of being. I wonder what Napoleon thinks if he is permitted to glimpse modern warfare between so-called civilized nations? I rather imagine that the Little Corporal is glad he is out of it.

Labor Day come and gone
with American folk enjoying
auto tours, picnics, theatres,
home gatherings, baseball games
and they able to tune in their radios on world news and read under bright lights. Try to imagine what our next Labor Day will be. I think that no man living would venture to make a guess as to that. All
we can do is hope and pray.
And if you are really wise, you
will do more praying than hoping.

DIET AND HEALTH

Dangers In Too Much Vitamin?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A WEEK or so ago we expressed
the opinion that the use of concentrated vitamins was being carried too far. Not content to depend on the vitamins that any well-balanced diet contains, we are urged to take concentrated vitamin tablets and fortified foods.

Processed food manufacturers,
fearing the criticism that their
products would be de-vitaminized,
have made a great variety of forti-

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest
only, and then only through his column.

fied products available—several
kinds of vitamin D milk, canned and natural; vitamin A added to oleomargarine, and so on.

Now, while everyone agrees that vitamins are necessary to prevent deficiency diseases and for perfect
health, nobody knows how much vitamin there ought to be. And what I did not suggest the other
day was that perhaps it is possible
to get too much vitamin, just as it is possible to get too much of a drug.

Support for View

Protests coming from high authorities and presented before the Pacific Science Congress recently
would tend to support such a view.

Dr. Paul Gyory, of the Western Reserve School of Medicine, said
that only a few vitamins were available in pure form. There may be hundreds of active vitamins we do not know about. By fortifying foods with the known vitamins, we
may be upsetting the whole vitamin equilibrium.

To make an analogy, if we knew
of sugar only among the three fundamental dietary principles, we might add it artificially to foods,
knowing it is necessary, but this
would cut down the proportion of equally necessary proteins and
fats, perhaps to dangerous levels.

Vitamin D One

The inclusion of too much vitamin of one kind may actually activate deficiency diseases hitherto latent.

Vitamin D, of all the vitamins, is
the one that can probably be pushed too much.

Vitamin D is definitely needed, at least by children, to prevent rickets.
It is not present in large quantities in ordinary foods. In infant feeding cod-liver oil is used for its vitamin D content to supplement the ordinary diet. It can be manufactured by the human body on its own,
by exposure to sunlight. The sunlight forms vitamin D in the skin.

This is all very well, and granted
it is necessary, but Dr. Agduhr, of Upsala, Sweden, reports cases of children who had functional heart
disturbances as a result of too much cod-liver oil.

Kidney Stone

When the diet contains too much vitamin D, exposure to sun may bring about conditions due to excess of the vitamin in the body.
Thus, stone in the kidney has been ascribed to vitamin D. Kidney stone is known to occur in tropical countries, such as India, with much greater frequency than in less sunny climates.

Dr. Russell Wilder, who represented the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association, felt
that only limited fortification should be allowed. Processed flour can be given enough vitamin B to bring it back to the amount natural whole-wheat would have. Discriminating fortification of milk with vitamin D is under consideration. And fortification of oleomargarine with vitamin A, in order to make it equivalent to butter, is also allowable.

STARS SAY—

For Tuesday, September 5

EXCELLENT planetary assistance

may be depended upon for launching new enterprises, with aggressive and high-pressure initiative, on this day. It is probable that ready assistance and eager cooperation for putting over "big
deals" will be found in large corporations, trusts or political, diplomatic or fraternal organizations.
Ingenuous plans developed by practical
methods are sure to be recognized, although there is a likelihood that some unwelcome changes
may be demanded. In all decisions be wary in signing papers,
leaving no loophole for miscon-
struction or treachery.

Those whose birthday it is are
on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunity for putting over major propositions with initiative and enterprise. Such propositions are assured the ready
support of large corporations, political or other bodies needful for development and promotion. In all transactions, however, be alert to trickery and fraud, especially in connection with the signing of documents. Change of plans or surroundings may be demanded.

A child born on this day may have capacity for hard work in a constructive, practical and aggres-

original, independent and indomit-

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

by OREN ARNOLD

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

"BUT SHOT, you must have!
What you say is rid—it's obviously a mistake. You couldn't possibly have inspected the dry stream bed
thoroughly."

Lorena was arguing with her
companion there on the promontory. They had just seen 60 odd head of Phantom steers move out of sight, and Shot was excited.

"They may be going up there today, but I tell you those other stolen
herds couldn't have been taken up
that way. I was there a few hours
after more than a hundred cows disappeared. They'd be bound to leave heavy tracks. But there wasn't a sign of a trail. I rode up that dry bed for 200 yards or so
myself, back and forth across it.
Not a sign."

"Well—there they are now, anyway, Shot. I mean, there this herd goes. Whatever will we do?"
"We've got—I've got to follow
them. I'll take a gun and—no! No, gosh, I can't do that. I can't leave you here alone. But you couldn't go where I'd have to scramble; you couldn't stand it, and—"

"But be sensible, Shot! I could stand it, I think. But suppose we did both go? Wouldn't it be extremely risky? We are just two.
It is broad afternoon, daylight.
We'd likely be seen. What could we accomplish?"

Shot pondered that, gripping his rifle stock.

"Well—well, you're right, little girl, doggone it. You can out-think
me. My way is to bust out and try to fight everybody. I guess—well,
I guess the thing to do is squat
right here in hiding, then try to trail those cows tonight. Or no, I'll slip back home with you and bring some help. On horseback we can get to the dry stream bed before
midnight and I believe we can follow a trail as plain as that evening star. Yep—that's the ticket! We'll just lay low here and wait."

They could talk, and they did
talk, of a thousand things during the ensuing two hours. Shot was impatient to be up and going, but he restrained himself. He saw no
more raiders, no further sign of life
in the valleys below. The green
along the river bank began to darken as the sun dipped behind
its western hill, casting early shadows. The brightness of the mirrored water turned to a metallic gray, still shiny with reflections
of the sky in it, but not as gleaming as it had been in mid-day.

"We can leave here in another couple of hours, maybe earlier," he told her.

"I know you are anxious to start.
But promise me, Shot—you will be careful tonight? After you leave the ranch again, I mean?"

"Huh? Oh, sure. Why, certainly.
A man's got to be careful."
"But I mean—very careful. You
—don't you understand?"

"Sure! I'll have to be, Lorena. I think this is likely to be the showdown. For the first time we know which way Escobar's thieves went.
I can't figure how in the old nick
we missed that trail before—I still don't believe they used that dry bed, doggone it! But I'll bet we don't miss any bets tonight. We aim to ride Escobar down if he takes us to South America! I'll have to be careful, won't I?"

She only sighed. Men are blind

They talked of a thousand things during the ensuing two hours.

at times, she had heard. She looked at Shot. He had laid his hat aside and he loomed above her even though he was crouched on his knees. He was a striking fellow.
Not extremely handsome; not as handsome in the accepted sense as
—as Jerry Dale, for instance. Not as quick to smile. Not as wellchiseled features. But then, there were other things. Subtler, finer things. Lorena liked his blond hair.
And she liked the way he had of coloring noticeably whenever he said or did anything that could be called slightly embarrassing. She marveled that so boyish a man
could be so strong and stern at other times.

As he had been doing for hours
now, he lifted the glasses once
more to his eyes, peering down at the landscape around the river. But he passed them to her at once.
"I'm getting dizzy from looking,
Lorena," he said, rather wearily.
"You look, if you want to. Dog-
gone if I'm not even seeing water
in the dry stream bed now."

She laughed at him, but took the glasses and lifted them to her own eyes.

All at once she was intent on something. She stared hard, not moving at all.

"Shot! What did you say? What did you just say?"

"Huh?"
"What did you just tell me?
Didn't you say—say you saw water in the east fork of the river?
The fork that is always dry? That had been dry all day?"

"Why, yes! Yes, I thought I did.
Why?"

"Well, I see it, too!"

"Yes! I do! And Shot—it's moving! There's a lot of water coming down that dry channel. I tell you
there is! Look!"

He stared at her, incredulous, for a long moment as she passed the field glasses back. Automatically
they both looked downward again
then.

They didn't need the glasses.
With bare eyes they could both see

the table, don't reach for things.
Ask to have them handed to you.

Then it was that young Shot Rogers sort of came to life. His lips suddenly tightened, and the boyish look of him disappeared.

"Ghost river! Phantom ranch!"
Lorena was muttering it, en-
thralled.

"I never heard. Just an old name. Lots of stories about it. Indian massacres and such up in here
in the old days. Mining men lost
All that. But—"

"Ghost river! Phantom ranch!"
Lorena was muttering it, en-
thralled.

"But whatever is it? What,
Shot?"

"I don't know, but you can bet
your last pair of socks, missy, that I'm doggone sure going to find out!"

HITLER'S HEIRS
VERY touching was the statement of Fuehrer Hitler in which he indicated the line of royal succession in Germany, in case anything happened to him in his patriotic job of shooting up Poland and annexing the rest of Europe.

If God in his wisdom sees fit to remove Hitler, the dictatorship then goes to Field Marshal Goering. If Goering passes on to Valhalla before Great Germany has achieved its manifest destiny, Deputy Fuehrer Rudolf Hess, political expert who runs the Nazi Party, will take up the torch and carry on. And there may be another and another until, as Hitler has prophesized, his Nazi Empire will last for 1,000 years, as Rome did.

But the onlooking world, or at least the part of it from which this present comment comes, is not greatly concerned with the Nazi Crown Prince and his successors. If that whole outfit of super-militarists now kicking Europe around were swept away—as it will be in God's own good time—we could bear it. And from what we lesser mortals can guess from the general situation, that time may come much sooner than the Nazi Caesars imagine.

Victor Hugo, telling about the elimination of Napoleon, the original European dictator, said simply that "God wearied of him." That fate may be expected for Hitler and all his gangster-statesmen. And the time may not be long.

FIRE TOWER SQUIRRELS
CONFIRMED "joiners", looking around for a new movement or organization to sign up with should not overlook the Honorable Order of Squirrels. It is sponsored by the U. S. Forest Service and has a useful purpose, which is enlistment of citizens in protection of forests from fires.

All the interested person has to do is to visit a national forest and climb the winding stairway to the top of one of the fire towers, 80 to 100 feet high. Once at the top, the climber is allowed to get his breath again and then asked to pledge himself to do all in his power to prevent forest fires. The tower man then presents him with a membership card. There are no dues.

It is said that the ancient and honorable order of squirrels is growing fast. People like to climb the fire towers. The view from the top is usually well worth the effort. There is also the personal exhilaration and sense of achievement felt by people accustomed to elevators who find how many steps they can climb if they try. Forest rangers find that more women

Up to another day of World War. When living through the first one that was to end all war and make the world safe for democracy I did not suspect that I would live through a second one. But here I am and across the Atlantic Europe is in flames. All major powers except the United States either are engaged in warfare or pledged to aid a power that is engaged. So far the only safe and sane spot in the world is this land of ours. May our land remain as it is.
This conflagration of hatred that now is raging will be almost as much a war of words as a war of guns. Remember that constantly. England and France wish us allies and will strive toward that end. Germany wishes us to remain neutral and will do all possible to keep us so. That German aim is the only one with which I am in full accord. I regard Hitler as a distinct menace, but a menace to Europe, not the United States. I hope he is crushed and believe that

WASHINGTON—No matter what you may think of Hitler, it is clear from reports percolating back from Berlin that he is the man who is making the decisions in Germany.

Field Marshal Goering, the Aviation Minister, is second in command, but even he takes no steps without Hitler's definite O. K.

Hitler's favorite method of outlining a policy is to call in several of his advisers and provoke an argument among them. Hitler himself listens. Finally, when the discussion is hot and he has heard both sides, he steps in and makes the decision. Last winter, for instance, Goering became convinced that the persecution of the Jews was costing Germany far more than it was worth. He argued that it was making enemies all over the world, and increasing the economic boycott.

Therefore he proposed that Germany should ease up on the anti-Jewish drive, permit the older Jews to remain in the country, and only insist on the exodus of the wage-earners, but give them time to arrange their affairs. The wage-earners, he said, would be sure to take their families with them.

Goering informed Hitler that he wanted to discuss this with him and got an invitation to come to Berchtesgaden. When he arrived, he found Foreign Minister Ribbentrop and Heinrich Himmler, head of the secret police, also present. Both are leaders of the anti-Jewish movement and argued vigorously against the Goering plan.

Goering countered, and the argument continued at length, Hitler listening. Finally Hitler interrupted, told Goering he was convinced that his plan of easing the anti-Jewish drive was good and should be given six months or so to see how it worked.

PROPHET ICKES
Omniscient Secretary Ickes was the only man in Washington who predicted war on September 1 and hit it right on the nose.

Ickes pointed out that Hitler always considered September his lucky month, and that he would probably wait until the first day of September to attack Poland. Hitler struck just after the hands of the clock had moved into the very early hours of September first.

Dangers In Too Much Vitamin?

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
A WEEK or so ago we expressed the opinion that the use of concentrated vitamins was being carried too far. Not content to depend on the vitamins that any well-balanced diet contains, we are urged to take concentrated vitamin tablets and fortified foods. Processed food manufacturers, fearing the criticism that their products would be de-vitaminized, have made a great variety of fortified products. Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Products coming from the Pacific Science Congress recently would tend to support such a view. Dr. Paul Gyory, of the Western Reserve School of Medicine, said that only a few vitamins were available in pure form. There may be hundreds of active vitamins we do not know about. By fortifying foods with the known vitamins, we may be upsetting the whole vitamin equilibrium.

To make an analogy, if we knew of sugar only among the three fundamental dietary principles, we might add it artificially to foods, knowing it is necessary, but this would cut down the proportion of equally necessary proteins and fats, perhaps to dangerous levels. Vitamin D One The inclusion of too much vitamin of one kind may actually activate deficiency diseases hitherto latent. Vitamin D, of all the vitamins, is the one that can probably be pushed too much. Vitamin D is definitely needed, at least by children, to prevent rickets. It is not present in large quantities in ordinary foods. In infant feeding cod-liver oil is used for its vitamin D content to supplement the ordinary diet. It can be manufactured by the human body on its own, by exposure to sunlight. The sunlight forms vitamin D in the skin. This is all very well, and granted it is necessary, but Dr. Agduhr, of Upsala, Sweden, reports cases of children who had functional heart disturbances as a result of too much cod-liver oil.

Kidney Stone When the diet contains too much vitamin D, exposure to sun may bring about conditions due to excess of the vitamin in the body. This stone in the kidney has been ascribed to vitamin D. Kidney stone is known to occur in tropical countries, such as India, with much greater frequency than in less sunny climates. Dr. Russell Wilder, who represented the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association, felt that only limited fortification should be allowed. Processed flour can be given enough vitamin B to bring it back to the amount natural whole wheat would have. Discriminating fortification of milk with vitamin D is under consideration. And fortification of oleomargarine with vitamin A, in order to make it equivalent to butter, is also allowable.

EXCELLENT planetary assistance may be depended upon for launching new enterprises, with aggressive and high-pressure initiative, on this day. It is probable that ready assistance and eager cooperation for putting over "big deals" will be found in large corporations, trusts or political, diplomatic or fraternal organizations. Ingenious plans developed by practical methods are sure to be recognized, although there is a likelihood that some unwelcome changes may be demanded. In all decisions be wary in signing papers, leaving no loophole for misconception or treachery. Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of splendid opportunity for putting over major propositions with initiative and enterprise. Such propositions are assured the ready support of large corporations, political or other bodies needful for development and promotion. In all transactions, however, be alert to trickery and fraud, especially in connection with the signing of documents. Change of plans or surroundings may be demanded. A child born on this day may have capacity for hard work in a constructive, practical and aggressive way. It may be resourceful, original, independent and indomitable. It should have fine support from "higher-ups."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

"BUT SHOT, you must have! What you say is ridi—is obviously a mistake. You couldn't possibly have inspected the dry stream bed thoroughly."

Lorena was arguing with her companion there on the promontory. They had just seen 60 odd head of Phantom steers move out of sight, and Shot was excited.

"They may be going up there today, but I tell you those other stolen herds couldn't have been taken up that way. I was there a few hours after more than a hundred cows disappeared. They'd be bound to leave heavy tracks. But there wasn't a sign of a trail. I rode up that dry bed for 200 yards or so myself, back and forth across it. Not a sign."

"Well, there they are now, anyway, Shot. I mean, there this herd goes. Whatever will we do?"

"We've got—I've got to follow them. I'll take a gun and—no! No, gosh, I can't do that. I can't leave you here alone. But you couldn't go where I'd have to scramble; you couldn't stand it, and—"

"But be sensible, Shot! I could stand it, I think. But suppose we did both go? Wouldn't it be extremely risky? We are just two. It is broad afternoon, daylight. We'd likely be seen. What could we accomplish?"

Shot pondered that, gripping his rifle stock.

"Well—well, you're right, little girl, doggone it. You can out-think me. My way is to bust out and try to fight everybody. I guess—well, I guess the thing to do is squat right here in hiding, then try to trail those cows tonight. Or no, I'll slip back home with you and bring some help. On horseback we can get to the dry stream bed before midnight and I believe we can follow a trail as plain as that even under the stars. Yep—that's the ticket! We'll just lay low here and wait."

They could talk, and they did talk, of a thousand things during the ensuing two hours. Shot was impatient to be up and going, but he restrained himself. He saw no more raiders, no further sign of life in the valleys below. The green along the river bank began to darken as the sun dipped behind its western hill, casting early shadows. The brightness of the mirroring water turned to a metallic gray, still shiny with reflections of the sky in it, but not as gleaming as it had been in mid-day.

"We can leave here in another couple of hours, maybe earlier," he told her.

"I know you are anxious to start. But promise me, Shot—you will be careful tonight? After you leave the ranch again, I mean?"

"Huh? Oh, sure. Why, certainly. A man's got to be careful."

"But I mean—very careful. You don't you understand?"

"Sure! I'll have to be, Lorena. I think this is likely to be the show-down. For the first time we know which way Escobar's thieves went. I can't figure how in the old nick we missed that trail before—I still don't believe they used that dry bed, doggone it! But I'll bet we don't miss any bets tonight. MANY VISIT RIFE HOME FOR ANNUAL GATHERING

Continuing a custom of several years standing, a large group of young people, who spend the camp meeting season each year at Stoutsville, gathered Monday at the home of Mrs. Marcus Rife, Miss May Katherine and Howard Rife, Walnut Township, for an informal gettogether.

Dinner was served buffet style at noon from a table set on the large screened back porch. A game of baseball was played on the grounds of Walnut Township School during the afternoon. Croquet and other games were enjoyed on the lawn.

Preceding the supper hour, the guests gathered in the spacious living rooms of the Rife home where they were entertained with vocal music by Mrs. Larry Loschert, Milford Ater, Chillicothe, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lea, Warren, and Mrs. Loschert playing the piano accompaniments.

Mr. Lea, who has tricks of magic and sleight of hand for his hobby, mystified the audience for an hour with his clever performance.

Gerald Coy of Jackson offered several impersonations as his part of the program.

Later in the evening, the guests enjoyed a hay ride and wiener and marshmallow roast.

Buck Gridders Prepare For Big Ten Contests

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5—Faced with a tough schedule, Ohio State University football squad members today drifted toward the campus for autumn practice which begins next Monday.

On successive Saturdays, beginning Oct. 7, the Scarlet and Gray men line up against Missouri, Northwestern, Minnesota, Cornell, Indiana, Chicago, Illinois and Michigan. Chicago was the only "sure thing" in the pack.

With a record of 29 victories, 10 defeats and one tie, Coach Francis Schmidt, the burly Texan who brought razzle-dazzle to the Midwest, was launching his sixth year at the North High Street institution.

An unusually large squad of 70, including 19 lettermen, was expected to greet Schmidt when the tackling dummies and imitable Schmidt jargon were lauded from winter storage.

Not Hailed As Champ

As team candidates left summer jobs or vacations to plunge into rigid training regulations, they recalled that it was the first time since 1934 that the State squad was not nationally hailed as a championship outfit. This was a psychological factor indorsed by Schmidt.

The coach himself had no idea of what the team's composition or merits would be when the lads from Missouri set foot for the first time on Ohio stadium soil. And recognizing the immensity of the task, Schmidt planned to experiment considerably before selecting the so called first string eleven.

Leading backfield candidates, all lettermen, were James Langhurs, hard driving fullback; Jimmy Straubach, fleet footed halfback; Frank Zadworney and Howard Wedbrook, also halfbacks, and Quarterbacks Jimmy Sexton and Don Scott. There were many others including Jack Graf, a 196-pound quarter and halfback from Columbus who was one of Central Ohio's outstanding high school stars three years ago.

First string linemen seemed destined to be chosen from Captain Steve Andracko, center; Vic Marioni, Bill Nosker and Stuart Whitehead, guards; Harvey Bolser, Charlie Maag and Jerome Grundies, tackles; Ross Bartsch, Frank Clair, Esco Sarkkinen and Charles Anderson, ends.

Anderson, a Negro pass snatcher from Massillon, was already being stamped as the boy to watch. Weighing 187 pounds and standing five feet, 11 inches, a natural build for an end, the dusky sophomore candidate might evolve into the Buckeye star of the year.

But more than one star will be needed for a bright season.

Anderson, a Negro pass snatcher from Massillon, was already being stamped as the boy to watch. Weighing 187 pounds and standing five feet, 11 inches, a natural build for an end, the dusky sophomore candidate might evolve into the Buckeye star of the year.

COLUMBUS, Sept. 5 — With Kansas City, Minneapolis and Columbus chalking up double victories in the torrid American Association race, the Blues remained three and a half games in front today by virtue of their 5-4, 4-0 conquests of the Milwaukee Brewers.

Minneapolis hung up two against the St. Paul team, 8-1 and 7-1, to retain their stranglehold on second place, while the Columbus Red Birds dumped the hapless last-place Toledo Mudhens, 10-0 and 10-0. Louisville took a 4 to 1 decision from the Indianapolis Indians.

BENGALS TO DRILL
CINCINNATI, Sept. 5 — The Cincinnati Bengals of the American Professional Football League were to stage their first workout today under the direction of Head Coach Dana M. King. Practice sessions were slated for Xavier University Stadium. The first game is Sept. 16 against the Chicago Indians.

U. S. LOSES DAVIS CUP TO AUSSIES; RIGGS IS BUMPED

By Lawton Carver
HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 5 — Running true to form in a series that was agonizing for the scarcity of top flight tennis displayed, Australia today again holds the Davis Cup and the United States is back in the ranks of the hopefuls, but of more importance is the fact that it may be years before the gigantic trophy is returned in this country. That slight ditcher perceptible in U. S. L. T. A. circles is understandable, what with gate receipts being dependent on stand-out performers and not a single one in sight in this country. Bobby Riggs, the agile Chicago youngster with the Charlie Chaplin walk, was to be the answer to all this, and this was to be his year. But he quite obviously won't do.

Winner over Adrian Quist and loser to John Bromwich last year when the United States successfully defended the cup against Australia, the best Riggs could do this time was to reverse that by beating Bromwich and losing to Quist, with the result that he can be rated no better than a year ago. He still is a .500 batter in this league, where you've got to hit a thousand.

Bromwich and Quist aren't much better, to be sure, still they are, or were, enough better to take the trophy single-handed, playing the solo matches and the doubles and will remain the duo to beat until such time as some currently unknown star bobs up here, or elsewhere. He could bob up in Australia, too.

COUNCIL SCHEDULES IMPORTANT DISCUSSIONS OF CITY BUSINESS

'40 BUDGET ONE OF PROBLEMS TO BE CONSIDERED

Ordinances For Additional Fireman, Patrolman Up For Readings

MEDICS' PLEA BOOKED

Bond Issue For Addition At Hospital Sought By County Physicians

Councilmen have several important issues up for consideration when they meet Wednesday, the first regular meeting in three weeks.

They will consider the city's 1940 budget. Estimated budget requirements for 1940 are $58,747.59 as compared with $52,537.82 for 1939. The need for an additional patrolman and fireman, restoration of pay cuts for Berger Hospital employees, changes in pension laws and an increase in funds for bonds and interest have boosted the budget for next year.

Ordinances for the employment of the additional fireman and a motorcycle patrolman will be up for second readings. The additional fireman is needed to comply with new state laws governing the hours firemen may work. Councilmen are considering the addition of a motorcycle patrolman as a result of numerous complaints about traffic conditions.

Resolution Scheduled

Councilmen are expected to receive the resolution from the Pickaway County Medical Society asking a $20,000 bond issue for an addition to Berger Hospital. Physicians passed the resolution contending that the last year has demonstrated that the present bed capacity of the institution is insufficient to take care of the normal sick and injured of the community.

Carl C. Leist solicitor, said he expected to discuss with councilmen what steps are to be taken in the city's domestic and commercial light rate controversy with the Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company. Judge Phil A. Henderson of Logan recently overruled a motion filed by the city to have the light company make the petition more definite and certain and state the causes of action.

The company obtained a restraining order in August, 1937, preventing submission of the rate ordinance to voters.

BULL ATTACKS HORSE; ATLANTA RIDER BRUISED

Joe Bush, who resides on Route 277 north of Atlanta, escaped without serious injury Sunday when a frightened bull attacked the horse which he was riding during an inspection of his cows and other stock. Mr. Bush was trampled, but his injuries were mostly minor.

He was riding bareback when the bull, apparently frightened by the horse, charged, a horn entering the horse's left shoulder. The horse reared and tossed its rider to the ground. After the attack the bull walked away.

Dr. L. M. Tarbill, New Holland veterinarian, called to treat the horses' wound, said that the horse would probably be saved although the wound is swollen.

Ed Schiering, Perry Township, owner of the bull, said that the animal has never shown signs of being cross.

W. E. Wallace Expands Bakery, Expresses Much Confidence in Future

With business showing steady increases this year and prospects bright for the future, W. E. Wallace, prominent Circleville baker, is in the midst of an extensive expansion program at his establishment on West Main Street.

The improvements will make the Wallace Bakery one of the finest equipped and most efficient plants of its type in the state. It will be several months before all the improvements, coordinating the operations of the bakery, are completed:

Mr. Wallace recently purchased the Haswell building and a large tract of land at the rear of his bakery to expand his business. The building, a three story structure 80 by 44½ feet, is being completely remodeled.

The narrow alley between the bakery and the new addition has been paved with concrete and a roof constructed over the thoroughfare so bakery products may be taken from the bakery into the new addition.

A large room in the new addition, directly at the rear of the bakery, will be used for slicing and wrapping bread. This room has a concrete floor, Celotex ceiling and is finished in white enamel. It is ventilated with 13 windows.

Garage Connected

Connecting with the wrapping room is the large garage where the 10 trucks are stored and loaded. There is also a storage room on the first floor of the addition for materials used frequently in the bakery.

The garage room is being remodeled with all posts removed. Eighteen inch "I" beams were used for supports.

Improvements on the second floor include an office for Mr. Wallace, one for T. D. Krinn, bookkeeper, a dressing room for employees and a room for salesmen where they may make reports and sales meetings may be conducted. The dressing room for employees is equipped with a shower and lockers. Sales meetings are held each week. A part of the second floor and the entire third floor will be used for storage.

Direct from Mayor Fraunfelder himself we get the word that he will not be a candidate for reelection. Until this time Squire Sperm Hoover is the only candidate for this office. But what may happen between now and deadline filing time, Friday evening, no one is venturing a guess. We'll go down the political line today and find out just what's going on for sure—council, school board and everything.

Charles Sherman told us yesterday that the Shermans from most everywhere held a reunion Sunday over at Jefferson near Canal Winchester with near 100 present. Eats, short program, business session and visiting occupied the day. Officials for the coming year are Charles Sherman, pres., and Louise Sherman, sec'y.

Ashville
And the Cline reunion was held same day at the local U. B. church with near one hundred in attendance. Program, business session, the cats and visiting one of the Clines told us made up the day's spend time they had. Guy and Robert Cline were chosen president and secretary in the order named.

Ashville
The Foreign Wars Veterans here for their scheduled picnic got away to a good finish at the evening session, there being a large and happy throng present. Fred Hines and his local band furnished two programs of music at the park afternoon and evening in their usual pleasing style. The fireworks display late in the evening were beautiful and much enjoyed by all.

Ashville
Yes, we know about the fine band picnic dinner for all the band members at the band room, but some of the names are not quite clear to us and we want to straighten these out before printing.

Ashville
Mrs. Bertha Parks Steinert and daughter Eleanor visited Mrs. Steinert's brother Bernard Parks, over the Labor Day week end. Eleanor recently returned from a three months trip to Egypt where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Parks who live in Cairo.

Ashville
Rev. Walter Peters, pastor of the Methodist church, went to Delaware to attend the annual conference of district ministers. Said that so far as he knows, he will serve this charge for another year but can't tell for sure.
